

Statement of motivation

My name is Nguyen Thi A, an applicant from Vietnam. At present, I am a final year student at B University and my major is C. I would like to be granted the HSP Huygens because by winning this precious scholarship I can take part in my MSc programme of C at D University, the Netherlands.

My decision comes from various reasons, among which there are two main ones. First, this MSc programme is extremely suitable with my ability, my interest as well as my Bachelor programme in Vietnam. After four years studied at my university, I have acquired a solid and diversified foundation of knowledge in C. Truly; the Honor Training Programme I have been enjoying in Vietnam has equipped me with an in-depth and integrating knowledge about the C. In addition, interesting annual internships I experienced at B University brought me a deeper understanding of the importance of the environment to human life.

Besides, one thing that makes me confident of my choice is the achievements I obtained during the time I study at my university. For the period of four years, I was always in the top-ten best students of my faculty. I was also awarded a significant grant by the "Rencontres du Vietnam" organization in two study years: 200x-200x and 200x-200x.

The second reason for my choice originates from the well-known reputation of the high qualified education system of the Netherlands. Having a chance to study in the Netherlands means I will have opportunities to approach and experience one of the best educational systems in the world.

The MSc programme I desire to join at D University is very meaningful to me. It will offer me new aspects of C research in which C issues will be considered in relation to economic and social sides. In my country, such issues are quite new and the Dutch MSc programme will bring me a great chance to come within reach of them. By taking a MSc programme of C, I hope for finding new effective solutions to reduce and limit human impacts on natural environment. Honestly, guiding people to have a sustainable and friendly lifestyle to environment is my greatest ambition. Apart from educational opportunities, I will also experience people and culture of the Netherlands, a beautiful country I love so much. To sum up, winning the HSP Huygens Scholarship will enable me to enhance and broaden my knowledge, not only in my profession but also in other fields.

Finally, I strongly desire that after finishing the MSc program at D University, by the knowledge and experience gained, I will contribute myself to the cause of environmental enhancement and protection in my country. Hopefully, when coming back to Vietnam, I will have chances to work for the E in the field of F. By this, I will be able to fulfill my dream - directing Vietnamese people to sustainably utilize natural resources in order to boost up our economy as well as our environmental quality.
